

Philosophy for Children Alberta

2012-13 Philosopher in Residence Program

If you are serious about jump-starting comprehensive learning and inquiry across the curriculum there is no better option available than our Philosopher in Residence Program.

The program embeds two members of Philosophy for Children Alberta into a school for five full days, providing all stakeholder groups within a school—students, teachers, parents, administrators, advisory boards, etc.—the opportunity to experience the Philosophy for Children program directly.

Summary of Key Benefits

One PhD holder (or equivalent) with extensive experience with the Philosophy for Children Program and at least one graduate student in philosophy. This team is available for any/all of the following:

- Daily P4C demonstration classes
- Co-teaching P4C materials
- Curriculum development and integration meetings with your individual staff members
- Planning and strategy meetings with your school's administrative teams and advisory groups
- Customized training around the P4C curricula most appropriate for your school over the entire week
- Recommendations for additional training and ongoing support

Additional Benefits Included

- 20 Student Novels
- 1 Instructional Manual
- 1 Practitioner's Guide
- French language support available
- Copies of all materials used while delivering demonstration classes.
- 20% discount on any materials ordered from Philosophy for Children Alberta within one month of the final day of residency.

Pricing

The base price for this program is $3200. This may be reduced by choosing not to take the additional benefits. Individual schools are welcome to join together to share both costs and programming.

Availability

The Philosopher in Residence Program is currently available on a first-come-first-serve basis from October 2012 through May 2013.
